Meeting Children Where They Are: School-Based Counseling

The CFCC's school-based program provides essential support for children who are struggling with one or more aspect of their lives. Our clinical team tailors services to each child's unique needs, working to address challenges that affect success at school, at home, and in the community. By partnering closely with families, teachers, school staff, doctors and community organizations, we ensure children receive consistent, practical support when they need it most.

WE SERVE CHILDREN WHO:

- ♥ Experience emotional barriers that prevent academic success
- ♥ Have difficulty coping with changes in their lives
- ♥ Struggle with motivation or are disruptive in class
- ♥ Are anxious, sad, angry, overly sensitive, easily frustrated and distracted
- ♥ Struggle with aggression, rule-breaking and being destructive
- ♥ Have difficulty in their relationships with peers, teachers and family
- ♥ May need additional testing beyond their public-school testing

Children are THREE TIMES MORE LIKELY to access service in school than in a clinical setting.

With school-based support, HELP IS ONSITE, removing transportation and scheduling challenges for families.
